

Singer-songwriter Lyra Star sprinkles a little bit of magic into every song she creates.

An independent yoga-loving dreamer, Star spread her wings past her hometown of Nashville to eventually find herself exploring and falling in love with the West Coast. Finally settling in California, she spent a number of years in the San Francisco Bay Area teaching at Montessori schools and playing music on the side. A few months after releasing her first full length album, A Thousand Dreams, she made the decision to leave the Bay Area and move to Los Angeles to further pursue her career as a songwriter, performing artist, and yoga instructor.

Finding inspiration in the likes of Imogen Heap and Tori Amos, Star continues to fearlessly follow her tenacious inner voice as she performs at a variety of venues in the Los Angeles area. As a solo artist, her imagination and creativity truly shine through her work while her pure, ethereal vocals and profound lyrics reveal a highly aware, genuinely creative soul that never lets go of the importance of following her dreams.

Since the move to LA, she has really started to expand and grow as an artist simply by being in a city where there is so much music, art, and creative expression. In 2019, she released her first single, a moody electronic folk/pop cover of Jimi Hendrix's "Red House," and the beginning of 2020 marked the release of her first original single, "Beautiful Ride."

"I was a visual art major in college, and in a lot of ways, songwriting has become my paint palette over these last five years.. I always try to work closely with producers in order to create the right mood for each song, and my first album, A Thousand Dreams, is really representative of my growth as a singer/songwriter. I've come a long way since my first open mic night."

A Thousand Dreams is not just an album. It is a transportative, completely immersive experience that brings listeners into another world and reminds us all that there is incredible beauty in each and every one of our own journeys and in fighting for and accomplishing our dreams.

Stay tuned for what is to come in this next year, as the focus for Star is on releasing more new content and a major music video showcasing her contortion skills that will be released on YouTube in late spring.
